

James Temple

As PwC Canada's Chief Corporate Responsibility Officer, James leads a team that develops strategies and initiatives that bring PwC's purpose to life in the marketplace.

In this leadership role, he works in collaboration with the firm's people, clients and communities to co-design solutions that address society's biggest challenges, helping to activate employee engagement, drive operational efficiencies, elevate stakeholder engagement and connectivity, and differentiate PwC's brand in the marketplace.

His portfolio includes oversight of PwC's environmental sustainability efforts, the PwC Canada Charitable Foundation, external reporting and the purpose driven focus to the Canada firm's $150M 'New World. New Skills' agenda designed to address the growing mismatch between the skills people have and those needed for the digital world. This includes the firm's commitment to help address digital inclusion and upskill 1 million not-for-profits to help close society's digital divide.

A frequent keynote speaker, James focuses on conversations related to building trust and corporate purpose and has appeared before the Senate of Canada Special Committee on the Charitable Sector. He serves on the Board of Directors for the Philanthropic Foundations of Canada and is a member of the not-for-profit committee of the Risk Oversight and Governance Board at CPA Canada.

Talk to James on Twitter about corporate social responsibility and community leadership by following him at @CSRjames.