

Janice Loomer Margolis

Janice Loomer Margolis is a Philanthropy Advisor with thirty years in the charities field. She facilitates and empowers families, couples and individuals to articulate their values, motivations, interests and desired impacts and transform them into practical, fulfilling and measurable giving plans.

Janice has held leadership positions with community foundations, environmental, health care and educational charities and has worked with hundreds of donors and donor families to carry out their charitable interests. As well, she has practiced law in the areas of corporate law for charities, tax-planned charitable giving and wills and estates.

Janice is a leader in the philanthropic sector as a member of the Canadian Association of Gift Planners (CAGP) Government Relations and the Education Committees and has served as Chair of the National Board of CAGP and President of the Vancouver Estate Planning Council.
