

Kimberley Blease

When it comes to building high-value donor relationships, Kimberley's energy, enthusiasm and thought leadership is unparalleled. With over 35 years of experience in both the corporate and not-for-profit sectors, Kimberley is a fundraiser and marketer who believes in building high value donor programs from the ground up. She helps not for profit organizations raise the bar on the experience their donors receive and inspiring donors to do more in the process in order to raise more money. She believes in the incredible power of legacy marketing to build real relationships with donors. In her role as EVP at Blakely, Kimberley leads the consultancy business, bringing vision and proven strategy to clients biggest challenges.